IRS E-FILE CUSTOMER NUMBER (ECN) PILOT PROGRAM

Filing your taxes just got easier! Since our records show that you prepared your 1998 income tax return using a computer, you have been selected to participate in an IRS ECN pilot program for completely paperless returns. Read on to learn how to use your electronic signature (shown below) to file a completely paperless 1999 return.

If yours is the first or only name in the address, your e-file Customer Number (ECN) is

If yours is the second name in the address, your ECN is

Your ECN is your "electronic signature" to be used when filing your 1999 federal income tax return electronically as described in this postcard. A joint return must include an ECN for both filers. If you lose your ECN, we cannot replace or issue you a new one during this pilot program! This eliminates the requirement to send the paper signature document (Form 8453-OL) and the accompanying W-2, W-2G and/or 1099-R documents to the IRS.

NOTE: If you are required to file paper forms other than 8453-OL, W-2, W-2G and/or 1099-R you are not eligible for the ECN pilot.

DEAR TAXPAYER,

The remarkable benefits of IRS e-file are:

- Faster refunds—in half the usual time.
- More accurate than a paper return.
- Quick proof within 48 hours from the IRS of return acceptance.
- The opportunity to “file now...pay later.” e-file in January, choose to pay electronically on a date you designate.

Are you eligible to participate in a new IRS e-file program that allows you to file a completely paperless electronic return? All you need to file a completely paperless return is a computer with a modem and approved tax preparation software. Software can be purchased at local computer software retailers or accessed from various on-line filing companies' Internet websites. The tax preparation software will guide you through the simple requirements* to determine if you can use your e-file Customer Number(s) (ECN) printed on the other side as your “electronic signature” instead of mailing us your signature on Form 8453-OL.

Information on the pilot is available on the IRS' Digital Daily website in the “Electronic Services” area at <http://www.irs.gov>. A link in the Digital Daily website provides questions and answers about the e-file Customer Number pilot, including a list of the software companies supporting the pilot. On-line software developers have a variety of cost structures for their tax preparation software and/or transmission of your return. Some products can be accessed free of charge from the provider's website and there may be a small transmission fee. Other products purchased from software retailers may have a cost that includes free transmission of the electronic return. Taxpayers interested in using tax preparation software should comparison shop to find the best fit for their situation.

The IRS is committed to protecting your privacy. Please be assured that all transmitters have agreed to meet necessary safeguards to protect your privacy.

Thank you for considering this exciting new program. Additional information can be obtained by calling our toll free number at 1-800-829-1040. Other IRS e-file options are available if you cannot participate in the ECN pilot program. For more details on IRS e-file, use TeleTax topic 252, which is available on our website or by calling 1-800-829-4477. If you would like to receive a tax package, see the information below.

SIMPLE REQUIREMENTS TO PARTICIPATE IN THE ECN PILOT PROGRAM

Your return should be completed without the use of a paid preparer and require no attachments to Form 8453-OL other than Forms W-2, W-2G, and/or 1099-R. An 8453-OL is the signature document normally used for electronically filed returns, which is eliminated by the use of the ECN. The software will prompt you to enter the information from these paper documents as part of your electronic return. There is no need to mail the IRS any documents!
